Introducing New Staff Members

Nafisa Saboowala joins Healthwatch Waltham Forest as Volunteer and Enter & View Co-ordinator. With over 25 years’ experience of the not for profit sector both as a paid worker and a volunteer, Nafisa enjoys the challenge of change management, particularly reviewing and improving systems.

She has held a number of diverse roles over the years, including Caring Services Management Accountant for Marie Curie Cancer Care, Head of Corporate Services for the Basic Skills Agency and Housing Operations Manager for Notting Hill Housing. One of her most unusual and interesting roles was managing the bus depot at the Olympic Park during its building phase.

Nafisa is passionate about volunteering and regards herself as ‘a serial volunteer’. She says ‘By volunteering for Healthwatch you can make a positive difference to your local community and learn new skills. You can help us influence health and social care in Waltham Forest and improve services for local people. You will meet new people, make friends and be part of a wider volunteering team.’

Nafisa has volunteered for Healthwatch and is a volunteer on the Namaste Project being run by St Joseph’s Hospice. She wants to hear from you if you would like to volunteer for Healthwatch:

It was very well attended by over 25 people who shared their experiences of accessing health services with us.

The main themes were: Difficulty getting an interpreter; lack of flexibility and understanding amongst health professionals; reduction in support leading to reliance on friends and family; problems with accurate information when given medication. Overall the people who came wanted easier access to information and methods of communication.

Interim Chief Executive Appointed at Barts

Alwen Williams has been appointed as the Interim Chief Executive at Barts Health NHS Trust.

Alwen has been a manager in the NHS since 1980, working in primary care, community and acute services, commissioning and joint planning. She became chief executive of Tower Hamlets Primary Care Trust (PCT) in June 2004, was seconded to the post of chief executive of East London and the City Alliance of PCT’s in 2009 and in 2011 became the Chief Executive of NHS East London and the City.

In December 2011 she also took on the role of chief executive of NHS Outer North East London leading the two Primary Care Trust clusters which cover all the London boroughs in north east London.

From April 2013, Alwen assumed the national role of director of delivery and development for the NHS Trust Development Authority. On 1st June 2015, she moved to Barts Health as interim chief executive.

Alwen says “I have first-hand experience of Barts Health through working in the NHS locally, but also through living in the area with my family, and it is a privilege to be interim chief executive of this important organisation.”

Healthwatch Waltham Forest looks forward to working with Alwen and her teams across Barts Health in the coming weeks and months.

Be Clear on Cancer Campaign

Public Health England is running a national reminder campaign to raise awareness of breast cancer in women over 70, with activities taking place across England from 13th July to 6th September.

The key message promoted on TV will be: ‘One in three women who get breast cancer are over 70, so don’t assume you’re past it.’ The advert also reinforces the message that finding breast cancer early makes it more treatable.

A second message, promoted more prominently in other campaign materials, will be: ‘A lump isn’t the only sign of breast cancer. If you’re worried about any changes to your breasts, tell your doctor straight away’.

The aim is to encourage more women aged 70 and over with unusual breast symptoms to go and see their GP.

Breast cancer risk increases with age

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in England, with around 41,200 women being diagnosed with the disease each year. Breast cancer risk increases with age and a third of women diagnosed with the disease are aged 70 and over.

Women in this age group are more likely to die from breast cancer than their younger counterparts, with more than half of women who die from their breast cancer each year aged 70 and over.

Whipps Cross Shortlisted for HSJ Award!

The Gold Standard, an exciting project which was developed to help improve the quality of care for older patients at Whipps Cross Hospital, has been shortlisted in the Improvement in Communications category for a Health Service Journal (HSJ) award.

At the heart of the Gold Standard is a charter that sets out 13 standards that patients should expect to receive while they are being cared for in a number of specially designated wards at Whipps Cross Hospital. The charter was drafted by patients, their families and hospital staff and developed by NHS Waltham Forest Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG), Barts Health NHS Trust, Leyton Sixth Form College and the Patients Association.

Deborah Kelly, Barts Health NHS Trust Deputy Chief Nurse said: “We are delighted that the Gold Standard has been shortlisted for this HSJ Value Award. We are continually looking at ways in which to improve patient experience and healthcare, and this award is testament to that commitment. I would like to congratulate our fantastic staff at Whipps Cross who have all gone the extra mile to help improve services for older patients at the hospital. This is definitely a job well done.”

Katherine Murphy, chief executive of the Patients Association said: “To be recognised by the HSJ and colleagues who work within health and social care for the work that we do is fantastic news. We know we are doing the right thing, our work in and around supporting patients is valued by the patients and their friends and family. We champion a patient centered approach to treatment. Through our Helpline, carrying out surveys, focus groups, listening events and obtaining feedback from our Ambassador network we are able to keep pulse on the issues that are effecting patients”

Kevin Watson, principal of Leyton Sixth Form College (LSC), said: “Most of the courses that LSC students follow are very much college-based. This project has given students taking sciences an opportunity to relate theory to practice in a work setting.”

Barts Chief Medical Officer to Step Down

Dr Steve Ryan has announced his intention to step down as Chief Medical Officer of Barts Health NHS Trust in July.

A passionate consultant paediatrician since 1991, Steve will be leaving Barts Health to pursue a new role with UCL Partners academic health sciences partnership.

Steve will be focused on improving the mental health and wellbeing of children and young people, working with agencies including NHS England, to cover a range of child health priorities identified by the London Health Commission.

Dr Steve Ryan, ‘a passionate consultant paediatrician’

Steve was instrumental in the merger that led to the formation of Barts Health in April 2012. At Barts Health he has overseen the integration and development of clinical services and has championed the vision to improve public health outcomes and reduce health inequalities in North East London.

Alwen Williams, Interim Chief Executive at Barts Health says “I would like to take this opportunity to thank him for his work to improve health services and outcomes for the people of East London and beyond. I wish him well in his future career.

Arrangements are being put in place to appoint a Chief Medical Officer for Barts Health on an interim basis while the recruitment exercise for the substantive position takes place.”

Smear Tests are Saving Lives in Waltham Forest

To mark the recent Cervical Screening Awareness Week (15-21 June 2015), clinicians are urging more women to attend their regular smear test.

Women aged between 25 and 64 years of age are eligible for free NHS cervical screening (known as a smear test) every three to five years. The smear test can detect changes in the cells of the cervix which could be a sign of cancer.

Early detection is very important

Women, registered with a GP, who are eligible for the test will receive an appointment letter. Across east London around 70% of women who receive an invitation attend their appointment. However this means that around 30% of women are not regularly having this important test.

Sadly, every year, 3000 women in the UK are diagnosed with cervical cancer. Cervical screening aims to detect abnormal cells in the cervix so that they can be removed preventing cancer developing in the first place. The earlier treatment is sought the better the chances of survival.

Dr Anwar Khan, local GP, chair and clinical director of Waltham Forest Clinical Commissioning Group, said: “When you are invited you should make it a priority to attend your smear test. This simple test can make such a big difference. The sooner cervical cancer is found and treated the better your chance of living a healthy happy life”.

Closure of Hayat Medical Centre

On Friday 19th June the Care Quality Commission (CQC) successfully applied to the court for a section 30 closure of Hayat Medical Centre. This came after the CQC’s recent visit to the practice, which raised concerns about patient safety.

The CQC, NHS England and NHS Waltham Forest Clinical Commissioning Group had been working with Dr Hayat to try to raise standards at the surgery, but it was not possible to improve the service to an acceptable level, even after taking contractual action.

In anticipation of a possible closure, plans were put in place to ensure patients could be swiftly transferred to another GP practice and nearby Manor Practice was selected as the interim provider, and has been allocated additional staff.

NHS England has notified all patients by letter and posters have also been put up at the front of the closed practice and in the nearby pharmacy.
